SOUTH PARIS NEWS
Sixtieth Anniversary
The sixtieth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Sweet was celebrated Thursday, June 28, by a reception at the Deering Memorial Church. This unusual event was especially fine because of the long time that the couple have been residents of South Paris and the good works that they have accomplished. The reception room was attractively decorated with quantities of flowers. In the reception line were Mr. and Mrs. Sweet and their daughter and husband, Rev. and Mrs. W. M. Lewallen. It was also the eleventh anniversary for Mr. and Mrs. Lewallen.

A musical program under the direction of Mrs. C. O. Ordway furnished the entertainment for the evening, which included piano solo by Miss Hester Ordway and Miss Edith Lowell; vocal solos, "Silver Threads Among the Gold" and "We're Growing Old Together" by Miss Edith Lowell; piano solo by Miss Hester Ordway; violin solo by Alfred Cota, Miss Lowell accompanying. The Rev. L. S. Staples opened the program with a word of prayer, followed by an address of congratulation by Mr. O. M. Lowell. Rev. Mr. Lewallen also spoke briefly.

Mr. Staples, in behalf of the church, presented beautiful bouquets and gifts to the happy couple. A bouquet from Mr. C. O. Ordway was also presented to Mr. Sweet, who made a short speech in appreciation of the remembrances and gave a brief history of the past sixty years. Refreshments were served and at the breaking up time, showers of confetti rained on the two couples.

Mrs. Sweet, formerly Miss Inogene M. Andrews, was born in Milton and had her 81st birthday, July 10. Mr. Sweet, who was 85 years old in April, was born in the section of Bethel adjoining Milton. IDEAL HOME LIFE

Good many in this country on the 17th of June, celebrated father's day, preaching of all denominations were requested to address their congregations about this important occasion, how parents and children shall understand each other and form a better communion between themselves.

In the old Jewish life, this celebration was not of such vital matter that there shall be introduced such as fathers and children. Let us see what the Bible has to say in our good book, how our father Abraham led his son to Mt. Moriah where he was to bring him as a sacrifice to God, this incident is written in the following words, "I thy both went together" and these words written to us the beauty of traditional unity between father and son; both went together, understanding each other, both together to go on the straight path of sacrifice, duty and ideal, the son honored the father and the father watched with his eye on the son; he kept him, showed him the right way, how to live, that was the fountain of strength by which the respect of the son to his father was secured, that was a solid appearance from the relationship from parents to children and from children to parents.

Unfortunately there occurred a distinction in the "modern life," especially for the last few years. Many of our sons and daughters, when they are together with their parents and they understand the problems of life better how to solve them than their parents, and a good many of our parents were unable to solve the problems of life.

Which our youth is living and therefore they have lost their power and the influence and the confidence over their children.

Our sages tell us when Moses went the first time to see how his brethren were living in Egypt, he saw a terrible picture; how little children carried on their shoulders the heavy yoke that was fitted for strong men and parents carried the yoke of a child, we believe that this is a true picture of good many homes of today, the children carry the yoke which is fitted for parents.

And this is the greatest tragedy in our present age. Young men and young women of today, to you we would like to talk to your parents carry their yoke which our Heavenly Father created for them—the yoke of advice of leadership, and even if they were not fortunate to receive a higher education, yet they are wiser than you with a wisdom that life gives, which comes from experience, which you don't possess yet, honor them and respect their views, comfort them, don't forget that their love to you is great and very strong and that their main concern is your welfare not theirs, your bliss not theirs.

And you parents, fathers and mothers, also to you I would like to offer a word of advice, see that you shall understand your sons and daughters, not only in changing every day, the circumstances to day differs very much than years gone by, do not keep staring towards your sons and daughters, but look at them, be friendly to them, be their companion, understand their view of life which might lead to a closer relationship where harmony and love shall dominate, not only in your home, even after they are leaving your tents, then it will bring new power and lots of happiness in the future.

THE GOD-GIVEN MIRACLE

In a little out of the way farm house away down the road, many miles from the town, lived a certain old man.

In his sprightly days he had been an active and colorful life as the leading town politician said a little old man who was almost broken in spirit.

One day the eyes of the old man, a moving spirit in all the town activities, but now practically a hermit—years he had hardly ventured out of his little farm house. Even his eyes seemed to have failed him so that he could hardly read his local newspaper.

Unexpectedly he was presented with a radio, and he has since become a different man. His interest in life has been renewed.

Suddenly, out of the miracle that is called radio, came to him the speeches and the news of the world, the great spontaneous demonstrations of the great National Political Convention. To his ears are carried the hoarse cheers of delegates for their favorite candidates.

A moment later he has heard the news, he hears it, as soon as the candidate is picked, he has the news. In fact, he is transported by a radio into the very midst of the great convention so many, many miles away.

The old man's dimmed eyes shine with a new brightness. He can even decipher parts of his local paper. His spirit is quickened and revived.

And this is happening to this old man, is happening in every part of the country to thousands and thousands of bed-ridden invalids and shut-ins.

What a blessing has been this God given miracle.

THE FRIENDLY WAY

No man can go through life living entirely independent of others with whom he is thrown in daily contact.

No woman can live sufficiently alone in our present complex civilization to be wholly independent of her neighbors and friends.

Yet we find men and women who take the attitude that whatever they do concerns no one else and who believe that they should be permitted to follow solely the dictates of their own judgment.

When a reformer or radical agitator starts out to rule the world, he finds certain established rules and practices developed by the ages and the wisdom of man, and he cannot do just as he pleases.

Individuals find themselves in the same pit without regard for the rights or wishes of others.

Adopting a policy of respecting the opinion of others, and at the same time being a man in his own right, need not be a crash initiative or kill ambition.

Some of the most courteous people are at the same time the most pronounced in their own views, yet they do not attempt to enforce them on others, neither do they try to travel their willful ways through life, crushing and stamping out all who disagree with them.

Human rights are human rights, and as soon as we are able to climb about on the rocks back of us. It was infested with sort of yellow snakes which glittered golden bright in the sunshine.

A New Kind

Mrs. Tripp walked into a store and said to a clerk: "I want a small, narrow comb about so long, for a slightly bald man with celluloid teeth."

Woods That Sink

The common foreign woods that will sink in water when thoroughly dry are: Greenheart, mora, West Indian stannwood, cocos wood, Pernambuco wood, various eucalyptus, African blackwood, black ebony, African oak, cocobola, rosewood, snakewood, and where people are friendly and considerate of others—that's where we like to live.

That's the kind of place that attracts Mrs. Tripp walked into a store and said to a clerk: "I want a small, narrow comb about so long, for a slightly bald man with celluloid teeth."

Not So Easy

Josh Billings says that a man has got a fast rate of getting on himself the next best thing he has is the good oylun or others.

We read that thyme was used by the Romans as a cure for low spirits. Hot thyme, doubtless—Arkansas Gazette.

Untimely Death of Two Young Men—Engagement Announced—Supper a Success.

The residents of this town are mourning the untimely fate of two of its promising young men, who occurred in Melvin Village, New Hampshire, on the afternoon of the 26th day of June. Working for an Electric Company, they had the misfortune to come in contact with a charged wire and the end was instantaneous. Every effort was made to resuscitate them but they were beyond human aid, leaving the record of their upright, blameless lives and sterling qualities a blessed heritage to kindred and friends. Services for Edward Tibbets were held at his home the following Thursday afternoon, Rev. Arthur Callaghan officiating, assisted by the Knights of Pythias with their ritual. Mrs. E. Elliott and W. T. Norton sang the hymn, "Some Day We'll Understand." Many beautiful flowers were in evidence and their aroma filled the air with silent sympathy. Mr. Tibbets was twenty-five years of age and leaves a wife, a son of eight months, a mother, sisters and brothers, and a grandfather and grandmother. The bereaved were Harry Merrifield, Bertrand Huber, George Elliott and Elmer Melton. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery. Edwin Burgess, the young man who came to his death simultaneously with Edward Tibbets, lived in another part of the town. He was one of a happy family, loving and beloved, twenty-three years of age. On the afternoon of the 26th of June, services were held at his home by Rev. Arthur Callaghan.

LOOKING TOO MUCH ON THE WRONG SIDE

Criticizing the Church seems to have become a common habit. And this not only from the outside, but from the inside as well. "What is the matter with the church?" is a question to be seen in magazines, religious programs, and even sermon topic announcements.

It is neither just nor wholesome to be constantly looking on the wrong side, or at least only one side of the picture. In fact, it is spiritually pernicious to the individual and most harmful to the cause of Christ which is involved.

We will not turn the question back and ask, as one might, "What is the matter with the church?" Nor will we deny the justice of much of the criticism. But we will propose that for a while attention be given to what the church stands for, what it is, and is doing in and for its community, and what its sudden elimination from the community life would mean, and we will say without hesitation, that the Christian Church, at its worst, is beyond comparison better than the best outside of it.

Its members will be found among the foremost promoters of philanthropies and all the best organizations, such as the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A., the hospitals and community chests. At its average, realizing that it is composed of humans whose character is in the process of making, it is still far above the general plane of the life outside. It is the one organization that has in charge the highest interests of the men women and children who make up the community, urban, suburban or rural. Through pulpit and Sunday school it is the teaching medium without which the gospel would be untaught, and generations would grow up without knowledge or experience of salvation through faith in Christ.

We cannot conceive of a churchless city, but if we could, it certainly would not be a place in which we would be willing to live.

No one will deny that the church at large needs a revival of spiritual life, a quickening of the spirit, a deeper consecration, a new measure of devotion to the Master on the part of its members. How can we help toward this end? not by standing apart and criticizing, but by allying ourselves with the faithful group in every church that is manifesting Christ in character and service. And this group is the leaven in every community that keeps life wholesome.

STUDY YOUR CHILDREN

In dealing with children it is necessary to find out their reasons and motives. Many times what seems like flagrant disobedience for the parents' requests is to the child only an earnest desire to help mother or father, as the case may be.

The little girl of 4, who had been told time and again to play with water, when found in the kitchen dripping wet, having spilt water all over herself, was punished for her disobedience. Later it was learned that what she had done was to climb up to the sink to get a basin of water and a cloth with which to wash the finger marks off the doorway as she had seen mother do. She slipped, the water spilled, and punishment followed. To her it must have looked as if she were punished for trying to help.

Another little boy had learned that he should never put his plants in the garden. He watched his father at work getting out the little weeds in the flower bed, and a few days later, in an attempt to be helpful, he pulled up all the little weeds, and left standing the tall, well-developed ragweed!

Some restrictions are placed on children that it is nearly a physical impossibility for them to carry out. "Sit still" and "Be quiet" are very easy to say, and yet to a healthy youngster, full of life and vigor, such commands are extremely hard to carry out for more than a few minutes at a time. Little children are growing and developing new, muscle power all the time, and they must have freedom to run, jump, shout, and play.

Nature demands it. Perhaps some special part of the house or yard may be set apart as theirs—a place with few dangers or hampering restrictions where they may safely "work off their steam" unchecked by continual nagging.

As a result of many inquiries received by the U. S. Department of Agriculture regarding the Chincheilla rabbit, it has published recently a 6-page leaflet, No. 29-L, "Chincheilla Rabbits for Food and Fur." This is available for free distribution.
